Out In

There's no room for slouching around this season - not even when it comes to bags. The slouch bag is way out!

Head and shoulders above

Winter doesn't necessarily mean that unflattering jumpers and granny-knitted scarves have to take centre stage - it is quite possible to stay cosy and warm and remain a leader of the fashion pack.

The fabulous creations from Peta-Lee will undoubtedly ensure that you're stylishly ahead of the game as temperatures plummet. With the help of a team who have learnt their specialist skills through community workshops, fashion designer Peta-Lee creates the most gorgeous handmade felt fashion accessories, including must-have scarves fashioned from top quality merino or alpaca wool. Her most recently launched winter collection blends crochet yarn into a perfectly soft and welcoming array of beautiful woollen neckpieces in a rainbow of the hottest colours, from teal to olive and purple - functional and great looking too.

Cameo appearance

To those in the know Pomellato is one of the most coveted jewellery houses around. In business since 1967, the company started as a handicraft workshop and still follows in the Milanese goldsmith tradition of making designer jewellery by hand. They are most famous for the use of brightly coloured semi-precious stones in all kinds of beautiful gold pieces. Using their trademark metal, one of their latest collections is slightly different from the classic Pomellato style: a range of rings, pendants and earrings that feature cameos emblazoned with a serpent design. They are stunning. Each of these intricate pieces has been painstakingly created by hand. Few people know that these works of art are actually fashioned from one piece of natural material, exploiting its different coloured layers during the carving process - exactly what you would expect from a top-class brand.

All eyes on...

If only it was this easy for all of us: when Brazilian fashion designer Daniella Helayel was working in New York she was unable to find appropriate dresses that she liked so she created her own collection... and Issa was born. Recently named by British Vogue as one of the hottest items to own, this fashion label has taken the world by storm and, thankfully, can now be found in South Africa. The company's philosophy is simple: an Issa dress can be worn from the beach to the office and onto the red carpet. It is a dress you can slip on and be effortlessly chic in at any time or any day of the week. If you are fortunate enough to own one of these coveted pieces you will be in the company of Madonna, Jemima Khan and Scarlett Johansson. The luxurious and sleek Issa pieces are made using soft silk jersey and come in unique prints and colours - the latest collection with its ethnic accents of red, aubergine and beige is sure to be a big hit with women of all ages. That's it, Illovo Square, Illovo, Johannesburg.
